. both of them. Getting in my pants. Colleen and Â .Q: How to unit test a method which uses a delegate on a observable collection? Consider the following case: public void Methods() { //... Parameters.Delegate(); //... } public void Parameters() { var user = new User(); this.Parameters.Add(user.Update(this.Parameters)); this.Parameters.Add(new User { LastName = "Name" }); } private void Update(INotifyCollectionChanged userCollection) { foreach (var user in userCollection) { //... } } I want to test if an user is added to my collection. Here is my effort: public void Methods() { var userCollection = new Mock(); var user = new User(); this.Parameters.Add(user.Update(userCollection)); this.Parameters.Add(new User { LastName = "Name" }); } public void AssertParameterIsAdded() { var parameter = this.Parameters.First(); Assert.IsTrue(userCollection.Verify(x => x.Add(user), Times.Exactly(1)), "Parameter was not added"); } The problem is that I am unable to test my observer on userCollection.Verify(x => x.Add(user), Times.Exactly(1)), because the x in the argument is not the one I was thinking. Any suggestions? A:
