“At Opta, we work with FIFA to provide data to the football community that can help improve both the game and the players. The HyperMotion technology presented in FIFA 22 is a great example of what can happen when we work together. By developing this technology, we are able to provide a level of authentic motion capture that was never before possible,” said Simon Parry, Director of Media & Entertainment at Opta. Fans can use this technology to experience the dynamic play with a full-colour animated visual presentation which takes direct inspiration from the players on the pitch. Players can be confronted with a variety of animations that can be triggered through scripted events, based on the data from the in-game motion capture suits. All the visuals and animations that FIFA Visual Ultimate Team uses are available in the FIFA Visual FUT Editor app, and are also featured on the Real Football DVD from the highly acclaimed FIFA series. Additionally, the FIFA Visual FUT Editor app can be played on multiple mobile devices for on the go analysis and the FIFA Visual FUT Editor app can also be purchased and installed on your PC or Mac. “I’ve seen the technology in action at FIFA World Cup™ matches, and it is the most advanced and authentic player animation I’ve seen to date,” said David Rutter, Principal Producer for FIFA Visual FUT. “It’s a truly visual football experience that can only be found on FIFA Visual Ultimate Team and Real Football.” “FIFA Visual FUT Editor is one of the most immersive, energetic and fun ways to enjoy the fast-paced action of FIFA Ultimate Team for the PC. When you’re on the pitch with your footballing hero in full-colour animation, you feel like they’re right there with you, and it’s mesmerising,” added Rutter. The FIFA Visual FUT Editor app is available for free download for iPad, iPhone, iPod touch and Mac through the App Store. The FIFA Visual FUT Editor app was first released for iOS in 2014. The FIFA Visual FUT Editor for Android is also available on Google Play.
